'Crash' jewelry remains a mystery

A New Mexico jewelry dealer who lost $25,000 to burglars recently is expected in Canyon along with the sheriff from his county early this week to examine more than $15,000 worth of turquoise jewelry found in the wreckage Thursday of a light plane which crashed in Randall County.

Sheriff Cliff Longest said the dealer will come from Bernalillo County, N.M., to look at two large jewelry cases of bracelets, rings, brooches and necklaces taken from the wreckage of a 1966 Beech Bonanza which crashed some time during the night Wednesday just ¾ mile south of Tradewinds Airport in north Randall County.

A 38-year-old Albuquerque, N.M., businessman, Roland Scheid, died in the crash and through three days of investigation local officers are still scratching their heads over what the crash victim was doing with the turquoise Indian jewelry.

Mystery continued to surround Scheid and his flight to Amarillo Saturday as Longest was contacted throughout the day by New Mexico law enforcement officials inquiring about the recovered jewelry.

A small amount of cocaine was also found wrapped in a piece of tin foil in Scheid's billfold.

The wreckage of Scheid's plane was discovered about 7:20 a.m. Thursday by two pilots who had just taken off from Tradewinds Airport, a private airport just south of Amarillo.

Sam Slagle of Shamrock and B. P. Balliett of Amarillo said they had heard earlier reports that a plane might be down in the immediate vicinity and had taken to the air to try to spot the wreckage.

Flying due south from the airport, they spotted the downed craft and called sheriff's deputies upon their return to the airport.

Longest speculated Scheid attempted a landing at the airport about 10 p.m. Wednesday and had circled back to the south in another attempt.

The crash scene investigation revealed he was flying to the north when he nosed down and one wing touched the ground flipping the plane around to face south.

Scheid was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace W. W. Hancock.

It was several hours after the crash that Sheriff Longest and his deputies learned of the controversy surrounding Scheid and the possible significance of his death.

The owner of Town and Country Color TV Stores in Albuquerque, Scheid was the object of a search in that city Tuesday and his home was raided early in the day by federal agents with a joint Drug Abuse Law Enforcement Agency in Albuquerque.

Longest said he was told by the federal agents, who arrived in Amarillo Thursday to follow up their Tuesday raid, that they raided the businessman's home on the strength of a search warrant which stated Scheid was keeping weapons and was a convicted felon.

The agents told Longest they found more than 200 weapons of every description in the Scheid home and each one was loaded with a bullet in each chamber. More than 50,000 rounds of ammunition were confiscated.

They said they had been watching Scheid for more than a year.

The raid also netted a quantity of cocaine and hashish. A quantity of the drugs were found in Scheid's home safe.

They also noted they found several empty jewelry trays on the top of a pool table in the Scheid home.

Longest said Scheid's wife, Janice, told Deputy Crosby Hammons her husband and a friend, John Van Deventer had taken a trip to Illinois last week.

The sheriff said fuel tickets indicating fuel purchases have been located revealing Scheid and Van Deventer stopped in Decatur, Ill., Des Moines, Ia., and Dumas for fuel purchases.

Mrs. Scheid told Hammons her husband returned to Albuquerque Wednesday afternoon. Leaving Van Deventer, he returned home, and learned of the previous day's raid by federal agents.

Hammons quoted Mrs. Scheid as saying her husband decided to fly in his plane to a point about two hours away from Albuquerque to "think things over" and decide what he wanted to do.

Mack Allen of south of Amarillo said he heard an airplane motor and crash shortly before 10 p.m. near his residence

WTSU's appropriation low in House committee's bill

The budget picture for West Texas State University appeared bleak last week as the House appropriations committee passed an appropriations bill which gives the university only a slight increase in funding over the Legislative Budget Board's recommendation.

However, university officials and area legislators are optimistic that before an appropriations package is passed by the state Legislature, WTSU will have adequate funding.

State Rep. Bryan Poff said about $7.227 million was appropriated in the House committee bill for WTSU operations beginning next fall.

The figure, he said, is about the same as last year's budget for the university. But, it is still about $1.5 million less than the university requested for the 1973-74 school year.

The Legislative Budget Board recommended in early February that WTSU be given $7.212 million for the school year.

Poff said some money had been added to the WTSU appropriation in general items.

He expressed optimism that a Senate appropriations measure would contain more funding for the university.

State Sen. Max Sherman projected the same optimism.

"I'm optimistic the Senate bill will be a good one as we won't be penalized for the reduction in students called for in the formula," he asid.

Sherman said the Senate bill is still in committee but is expected to be voted on early this week.

WTSU financial vice president Virgil Henson said he is currently figuring options on his budgetary request.

He expressed disappointment with the House-passed bill and said the Senate bill will provide more funding.

Even so, he said, "it's still a guessing game.

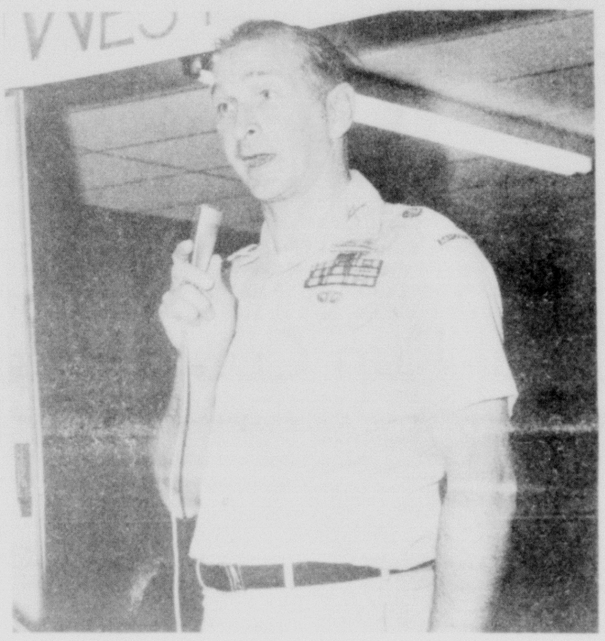
"I'm optimistic we won't be as bad off as it looked like we might be."

WTSU was hurt in its budgetary requirements by the continuous loss in enrollment during the past three years.

Funding from the state is based primarily on a complicated formula which is in turn based on the number of students attending the university.

University regents have also taken an active role in seeking support for adequate funding for WTSU. Following a recent regents meeting in Austin, Chairman Cloyce Box and Regent Don Curry visited with Speaker of the House Price Daniel and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby personally talked with the board during an executive session.

Box and Curry expressed optimism after talking with the two politicians.



Lt. Col. John Childs was emcee for Thursday morning's chamber of commerce breakfast here. Tourism was the main topic of discussion.

Meredith Warren, left, Mrs. Warren, and Bernard Warren flank W. A. Warden, who came to Canyon more than 50 years ago and started a small business which has mushroomed over the years. Warren sold his store last week to a Dallas firm.

Business here for 52 years, Warren's sells to Dallas firm

One of Canyon's oldest business establishments, Warren's on the west side of the downtown square, was sold to a Dallas firm Wednesday.

C. J. McManus, president of Robert D. Wilson, Inc., of Dallas, announced he had purchased the building, fixtures and inventory of Warren's for an undisclosed price.

Bill Pantel has been named temporary general manager. The new ownership took over at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday.

McManus said the store will continue for the present to operate under the Warren's name.

He said future plans for the store will be completed next week. In the meantime, the W. A. Warren family, which has owned the Canyon store for 52 years, will remain at the store.

Robert D. Wilson, Inc., operates stores in Texas and Oklahoma.

Former owner W. A. Warren opened what is today Warren's as the Gents Furnishings in April 1921 after a stint at school teaching and farming in South Texas.

"It's kind of hard to break off with all our business relations and friends over these 50 years," Warren said last week. "There's quite a bit of sadness."

Warren, who is 80, said the sale was made due to his and his wife's advancing age.

"We have enjoyed the 52 years we've been here to the utmost degree," he said. "And, we certainly want to express our deepest appreciation to all our friends over the years. We'll always be grateful to them and mindful of them."

Warren, who taught in a one-room schoolhouse in Coryal County in South Texas, came to Canyon in 1921 with his wife and a son, Meredith.

He opened his clothing store in a 30 by 60 building just next to the present location of the store.

"It was a very small operation and I was the only one working at the time," Warren recalled in a 1961 issue of The News. "Most of my business was composed of work clothes and outer wear sales."

When Warren opened his store on the west side of the square, there were two grocery stores, the post office, a barber shop, a cafe and two real estate offices on that side of the square.

The Warrens came to Canyon from Wichita Falls where he worked for Gulf Production. He and his wife came to Canyon one Christmas to visit her family and liked the town.

"We met many people here and several men told me there was a

Lubbock man named to board

Lubbock feedlot owner Wayne Owen was appointed Friday to a six-year term on the West Texas State University Board of Regents.

Owen was appointed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe to replace Amarillo cattleman Boone Pickens, who resigned recently with a broadside against Board Chairman Cloyce K. Box.

A resident of Lubbock five years, Owen is president of Owen Brothers Custom Feeding Co. in Cochran County. He said he runs a 40,000 head cattle feedlot.

A native of Arkansas, Owen and his family raised cattle in Texarkana before moving to Lubbock.

A third-generation cattleman, Owen says he "was as surprised as anybody" at the announcement of his appointment to the board.

He said he is not acquainted with any personnel at WTSU or with any of the other members of the board of regents.

Nevertheless, Owen said he is anxious to begin work, particularly with his eye on the university's School of Agriculture.

Although he's not a college graduate, Owen said he is interested in helping WTSU grow to better serve the needs of the Panhandle and the students.

"I'm agriculture oriented and West Texas State is in an agricultural center and I think they need a good agriculture school," he said.

Of particular interest to Owen is the establishment of the animal health clinic on the WTSU campus, a project now pending approval of the state legislature.

"Being in the business I'm in, I realize there's a definite need for it," he said.

Owen's predecessor on the board, Pickens, was also a cattleman of sorts with his interest in Mesa Petroleum.

Pickens resigned after firing off a letter to other board members citing irreconcilable differences between himself and Chairman Box.

Owens is the second regent to serve on the WTSU board from Lubbock.

Lubbock Attorney Kent Hance was appointed last fall to replace former State Sen. Grady Hazlewood, who also resigned.

Gov. Briscoe had previously expressed an interest in seeing a law which requires that regents be from different senatorial districts changed.

Sen. Max Sherman is carrying the bill in the Legislature.

Hospital plans completion by early May

Plans for Canyon's new hospital should be completed and ready for board of directors approval by May 1, Administrator Ray Grimes said last week.

Grimes, who met with architect Bill O'Connell Wednesday, said he hopes directors may seek bids about June 1.

The plans must be approved by the board of the South Randall County Hospital District before bids may be taken.

The new hospital, which is to cost about $1.6 million, is to be built on a plot in east Canyon.

Toursim impact here revealed

Representatives of tourist attractions in and around Canyon touted their economic impact on the community Thursday morning by telling members of the Chamber of Commerce they are responsible for the influx of thousands of tourists and dollars into Canyon annually.

During an early-morning breakfast sponsored by West Texas State Bank, chamber members were warned of the importance of their reception of tourists.

"One thing that's hurt our community for years is our talk about the weather," said Chamber President Raymond Raillard.

Raillard said the Canyon area is one of two areas in the country with the cleanest air, as recorded by government survey.

"You can play golf 340 days a year and you can fly 363 days a year," he said. "Sure it can get hot here during the day in the summer, but it cools off at night.

"We've got to get a positive attitude about our weather."

Boone McClure, director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, told chamber members the museum brings about 150,000 persons a year to Canyon.

About 450,000 persons visit Palo Duro Canyon State Park annually, Park Superintendent Elon Baker said.

He noted that for the summer months ahead, the park will have new restroom facilities and expanded barbecue facilities for the annual summer "TEXAS" production. The road leading into the canyon is also due for repair this spring or summer, he said.

Mrs. Margaret Harper of the musical-drama "TEXAS," told members a recent survey by the University of Kentucky indicates

Liquor license request delayed again by Pond

County Judge Woody Pond delayed again Friday a decision on whether to approve a license for operation of a liquor store near a residential neighborhood in South Amarillo.

Pond delayed his decision after a half dozen homeowners in the residential area presented a petition with 150 signatures asking that the license be denied.

A handful of persons had protested verbally a week ago when a hearing on the license was initially convened. Pond had postponed action until last Friday.

As the hearing continued late last week, J. D. Webster of 3214 Rusk in Amarillo presented the petition to the judge.

The hearing is to determine whether a license should be issued to a R. C. Hamblin of Amarillo to operate a Judge Roy Bean Package Store at the Wimberly and 34th St. intersection in Amarillo.

The protest of the request is the first such protest since Randall County residents in the South Amarillo precincts voted to okay sale of alcoholic beverages.

Hamblin was represented Friday by Jim Collins, Amarillo attorney, who spoke briefly to the Judge and the courtroom audience concerning Hamblin's request.

Collins contended that when the land in the residential areas around the proposed liquor store location was initially platted many years ago, the plot facing Wimberly and 34th Streets was left as commercial or retail property.

He said persons who purchased houses with backs on the retail property were even able to pay lower prices for their land simply because of the proximity to the retail area.

In addition, Collins told Judge Pond that just across the street from the proposed site of the li-

House committee's action on penal code ires Dowlen

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen charged Friday that recent action by a subcommittee of the House Jurisprudence Committee could render several parts of the state penal code unworkable, if accepted by the committee and the Legislature.

Dowlen worked for more than two years with committees of the State Bar Association and the State County and District Attorneys Association in penning the penal code legislation which is under consideration in Austin.

He said he might attend committee hearings this week on the bill.

One major item deleted from the penal code by the subcommittee is the section which brings the death penalty in line with recent Supreme Court guidelines. Dowlen said the subcommittee has eliminated the death penalty in the penal code.

However, another separate bill has been introduced concerning the death penalty.

A rewritten section concerning the definition of insanity in the penal code would be unworkable, Dowlen said.

Currently, Dowlen said, the law asks the question did the violator know right from wrong and did he understand the nature and consequences of his act.

Under the rewritten portion, the penal code states that insanity can be used if the violator did not know his action was wrong or was incapable of conforming his action to the regulations of the law he violated.

"It's the most liberal definition in the country," Dowlen said. "It is one which has been adopted by no other state and it has some loopholes which would undoubtedly help the hardened criminals more than it would hurt first time offenders."

Dowlen said the law as written in the bill would give an escape valve to repeat offenders since they could claim insanity on the basis that they were incapable of conforming their actions to those of society.

"It would be unworkable," Dowlen declared.

Another section which put meat in the state law on receiving and concealing stolen property in the State Bar penal code version has been changed so much "they're meaningless" in the subcommittee version, Dowlen said.

The Bar Association bill states that an accomplice testimony can be used to gain a conviction.

Our World

Perils Of A Perfect World

By ANN BROWN

The Utopia for mice that was established 5 years ago in Poolesville, Md., by the National Institute of Mental Health has ended in failure as have all its human counterparts.

Scientists generally agree that mice have similar social patterns to men. Dr. John B. Calhoun, a government psychologist, conducted his experiment with mice because he expected to collect in a few years information that would require many generations with human subjects.

Dr. Calhoun established his mouse "heaven" with four pairs of mice. Ideal living quarters were provided, safe from all natural enemies and disease. There was an abundance of food.

All seemed to go well for a while in the mouse Utopia. But when the available living space became crowded, the mothers began driving out their young. The males had no need to scrounge for food or protect their nests, so they lost their traditional place in the social structure. The colony converted to a matriarchy.

The rejected young became vandals. The outcasts resorted to vicious sexual aggressions but ignored customary family patterns. However, after a period of abnormal preoccupation with sex, the mice seemed to lose interest in breeding.

The population peaked at 2200, then went into a decline. Even after natural deaths returned the population to a level compatible with the living space, the apathy continued.

So with ideal living conditions, no health problems, perfect security, and plenty of food, the last mouse has died.

Is there any evidence that removing all natural problems would work any better with people?

Actually, similar human projects have already been rejected. Comfortable, low-rent, government housing developments have become such hotbeds of crime and vandalism that many of them are virtually abandoned. A few have reportedly been razed.

Beautiful apartment complexes featuring the last word in security and luxury are not faring too much better. One young bride expressed the general discontent: "You don't find the builders of these sterile monstrosities living in them; they live in vine-covered privacy in the suburbs.

"There's nothing to do in this place," the bride complained, "everything is perfect — down to the last potted plant."

The social planners should read Dr. James P. Cornette's classic composition, "Let Them Build Their Own Tents." The little boys were far wiser than our sophisticated government officials; they may not have understood the reasons, but they knew the fun was in the building.

Violence on TV and in movies may have served as examples to our destructive youngsters, but they were spawned by Idleness and Boredom. It was not busy, interested visitors who wreaked $50,000 damage on California's public parks last year.

Without exercise muscles atrophy. The same applies to the rest of the body. Is it any less true of the mind and the spirit?

Healthy strife and conflict are essential to human happiness and progress. When there is nothing left to strive for, there is nothing left to live for.

Why do the scions of huge fortunes risk their lives climbing mountains, racing cars, and diving from airplanes?

Life devoid of all risk is also devoid of all zest.

Creativity is as essential to human happiness as life space. Fellowship is also essential to happiness, but too much is as detrimental as too little.

Dr. Calhoun's mouse haven had a seeming advantage of the welfare state: No mouse had to sacrifice to provide for another. But in the final analysis it is the providers who survive.

The socialist theory presented as fact that man would be perfectly happy if all danger, deprivation, and drudgery were eliminated seems to have been exploded by Dr. Calhoun's experiment with mice.

Social Awareness

By CARROLL WILSON

I received the following letter last week, which may or may not be an indication of the communication in my household:

"Dear Mr. Wilson,

In regard to your column of April 8, I agree with your views on patience. I would point out, however, that there are a few women doctors, administrators and perhaps even firewomen. With encouragement from those who love her, your daughter, too, may accomplish her goals.

"I do hope, though, that she doesn't give up some of her other dreams. That is, to marry a handsome prince (like Daddy) and be a mommy (like me).

Sincerely, Mrs. Carroll Wilson

Social structures can disintegrate. Societies can fall with no push from invaders.

This point is no better illustrated than in two recent publications. One is the book, The Mountain People, by Colin Turnbull. Purporting to be an anthropological study of a group of people in South Africa, the Ik, the book has hit the bestseller list.

The other was alluded to in an article concerning a professor who studied the reactions of mice to overpopulation.

Society in both cases was at its lowest level.

Although it would be difficult for me to say with any scientific authority that these two cases have application to American society, I think it's interesting and perhaps even a positive thing to note our society's relationship to the Ik and the mice.

Again, not belaboring the issue of my scientific non-credentials, I believe there are some clear parallels between our society and those of the mice and the Ik.

Examples are numerous — riots during the late 60s, cases of complete nonchalance toward brutality, the American taste for violence on television, in literature and on the screen, American taste in humor, a prevailing apathy about our involvement in Vietnam, and on and on.

On the other hand, there are some rather satisfying indications that American society is not very close to disintegration.

Here in Canyon, for example, there are a good many of those indications.

West Texas State University Sociologist Hubert Oppe says he has the largest number of majors in the university. The Sociology Club at the university is volunteering time to aid school children.

A woman's club here has volunteered to aid school teachers to free them for more classroom time. And, you could go on and on here, too.

Social awareness is. Young people are becoming more involved with their surroundings and more interested in helping others who need.

For years, the federal government has funded programs designed to provide service to humanity, to encourage social awareness and basically, to help people.

Whether the growing social awareness in this country is a result of long-standing federal programs and impetus, I don't know. No doubt, an attitude of humanness bolstered by the federal government in a small number of its programs have had that effect.

Now comes President Nixon, who, in the name of fiscal conservatism, wants to lop off the Office of Economic Opportunity, a primary federal agency involved in social welfare programs.

While it may be true that the OEO has not been particularly tight-fisted in handling its monies, while it may be true the OEO wastes X number of dollars each year, it is definitely true that Americans are committed to helping those who cannot help themselves. It is even a basic tenet of our foreign policy (remember Vietnam?).

We as a people are committed to spending money for social welfare programs.

The fact is that to spend the amount of money which must be spent, which we are committed to spend, the federal government must be involved, possibly to a great extent.

What Americans must be wary of, even though President Nixon has noted he plans to make social welfare money available through a revenue-sharing deal with the states, is that money needed might not find its way to areas where it is needed.

We must not allow the President to use OEO as a whipping boy to stir conservative support only to find that once OEO is scrapped there is nothing to replace it.

A revenue-sharing plan for federal money to return to the states for use in programs oriented toward the poor, the underprivileged, sounds like a reasonable idea.

But, are the states competent to handle problems of the scope which have been handled by OEO and similar social welfare agencies? I doubt it.

It is ironic that because of rapid turnover and the power politics which dominate state-level government, revenue-sharing for social programs could be a disaster. Ironic because it is traditionally the tenured bureaucrats who, bogged down in red tape and paper work, waste the most money.

We find ourselves having to choose (and do we really have a choice, individually) between the lesser of two evils.

The federal government has, wastefully perhaps, done the job. The state governments opted years ago not to do it.

Social welfare programs must continue. The federal level should continue to take the lead in providing the services and programs we must have.

Good Samaritans At Work

By JIM SANDS

Most everyone, it seems, has a pet or two around the house. One such at our place is Bobo, a 3-year-old miniature poodle.

Friday, a week ago, just before the spring blizzard, Bobo got out of the yard and seemingly disappeared from the face of the earth. We didn't see him all weekend or the following Monday.

On Tuesday afternoon, when my wife returned home from work, there the little fella was—in a terrible mess and injured, apparently hit by a car.

Carol grabbed him up and took him to the family vet only a mile or so away. When she entered the office, the doctor said, "That's the little poodle I did surgery on yesterday."

It was then that we learned what had happened.

On Monday, a line crew for Southwestern Bell Telephone (Western Electric and AT&T), discovered Bobo lying injured in a field. Not knowing who he belonged to, the workmen took him to the vet, pooled their money and paid $13 for an operation.

According to the doctor, the men then took Bobo back to the area in which they had found him and turned him loose in hopes that he would be able to find his way home, which he did.

Had he not returned home, and had he not been taken to the same veterinary clinic, we probably would never have known what happened to him. And, had he not been taken at all, he apparently would not have lived.

We finally managed to locate the men who played good Samaritan to our Bobo and they accepted our thanks but not our money. But, forgetting the money part, I have an idea that paying the phone bill next month isn't going to be quite the chore that it has always seemed to be.

With fishing at Buffalo Lake again a reality, a lot of people are thinking about the sport. Here's a fish-type funny I ran across the other day while the snow was too deep to get to the lake.

Two businessmen were fishing when a storm came up and capsized their small rowboat. One man started to swim for shore when he noticed his friend struggling and sputtering in the water.

"Harry," said the swimmer, "can you float alone?"

"I'm drowning," screamed the friend, "and you want to talk business."

Another water-connected bit:

"Fellas," said the rowmaster of the galley slave ship to his oarsmen, "I have good news and bad news for you. First the good news—the captain has ordered a double ration of rum for you. Now for the bad news. This afternoon, the captain wants to go water skiing."

And for the people who grew up in poverty:

Father explaining to his teenager—"When I was a kid, my folks were so poor we didn't even have electricity. I was the only kid on the block who had a kerosene guitar."

Now for the wage earner:

"On payday, my wife gives me the Bobby Fischer greeting. She says 'Check, mate!' "

Buffalo Lake would make an ideal place for campers to visit for the purpose of trying out new equipment or making sure the old gear is working properly. Tommy Utz, Mrs. Gladys Odom, Mrs. Evelyn Utz and A. B. Odom found the area ideal for camping and fishing on their recent fishing visit.

Trial Run Could Help Campers

It's the time of year again when people drag out the camping and fishing gear, dust the cobwebs off the pickup camper or trailer . . . and begin to think about hitting the road to the mountains.

Many people hit by the camping or fishing fever in the spring go over their equipment in order to make sure each piece will perform properly when the big day, weekend or whatever finally comes.

But, instead of setting the rig up in the crowded driveway or backyard, why not hook onto things and take a short drive for a real camping trip?

Both Buffalo Lake and Palo Duro Canyon are just a short hop away for any Canyon or area residents, and both would make ideal spots to limber up the gear and get any kinks out.

The game management people at Buffalo Lake report that more than 13,000 people have visited the area during the first two weeks that the facility has been open for fishing.

Many of these thousands are just sightseers and many have gone simply to fish awhile. But, a good number have taken advantage of the camping facilities at the lake.

Palo Duro Canyon has also played host to campers this spring, and that facility, like the lake, would still offer less crowded conditions than later in the summer.

Back to the testing of gear, an overnight stay at either nearby camping area would give the camper a chance to get things ready without running the risk of being too far away from home should something go wrong.

And this would be equally as true for those who have just bought tents, trailers, motor homes or other major equipment. Just because it is new doesn't mean that it doesn't have a bug or two in it. And it would be much better to find out early and close to home than it would be during vacation and miles from anywhere.

Chambers Join In Effort To Recruit For WTSU

The Canyon and Amarillo chambers of commerce joined hands Thursday in an initial discussion of how they can work together to recruit students for West Texas State University.

Chamber President Raymond Raillard, Manager Roland Black, and Joe Gidden represented the Canyon chamber in the morning meeting with WTSU officials and the Amarillo chamber education committee.

A primary suggestion during the meeting was to help area residents develop solid interest in WTSU athletic programs, particularly football.

Raillard said the two groups discussed the possibility of helping promote season football and basketball ticket sales.

"Students naturally prefer a winning team and an exciting team," Raillard said," and if we could get the impetus underway that alone would create more of a desire in students to be here on a winning team."

Another area of cooperation was seen by the two groups in aiding the university financially in advertising in special school supplements in state-wide newspapers.

"If our chamber and their chamber had the funds or could raise the funds to help them advertise in these larger cities, they thought that would be good," Raillard said.

He said the chamber discussed funding for WTSU to provide more recruiting crews to visit area high schools.

Raillard said he learned at the meeting that the university receives about 66 per cent of the high school graduates from the Panhandle.

The chamber president said the meeting ended with the decision that a committee of members from each chamber would talk with university officials to see what they can do to help attract more students to WTSU.

The meeting, Raillard said, "was a good start.

"They (the Amarillo chamber) realize the university serves Amarillo and that they've got to have the university."

Attending the meeting from WTSU were President James P. Cornette, Information Director Jack Donovan and Dean of Men Weldon Trice.

Vandals Hit Cemetery Here

Vandals turned over and heavily damaged five tombstones in Dreamland Cemetery south of Canyon during the night Wednesday.

Also damaged were several flower pots.

Sheriffs deputies, who were able to obtain footprint casts of the vandals, were seeking other clues at the weekend.

"They went to a great deal of trouble," said Jerry LaGrone, owner of LaGrone Funeral Chapel. "It's beyond my imagination what kind of an individual that'd take."

Tombstones in various locations in the north part of the cemetery were overturned and broken and several flower vases were broken and scattered.

LaGrone said the Dreamland Cemetery Association will seek prosecution "to the limit" when the vandals are arrested.

County Judge Woody Pond said vandalism of a cemetery is a major misdemeanor offense punishable by a maximum fine of $500 or maximum imprisonment of six months in jail.

Children who were three years of age by Sept. 1, 1972, through Elementary 4, will have classes scheduled June 12-15, and June 19-22, 9-11:30 a.m. All groups except Elementary 4 will meet at the First Christian Church. Fourth-graders will meet at First United Methodist Church.

A day camp has been planned for Elementary 5 and 6, instead of the regular vacation church school. It will be held June 11-15, 9 a.m.-3 p.m., at a camp site as yet undecided.

Coordinators for the Ecumenical Vacation Church School this year are Mrs. Steve Woodard, First United Methodist Church, general coordinator; Mrs. Ron Kershen, St. Ann's Catholic Church, refreshments; Mrs. James R. Underwood, Jr., First Presbyterian Church, publicity; Mrs. Michael Morris, St. George's Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Don Sheets, First Christian Church, supplies.

Tourism Slides Are Available For Employers

A slide show to help local employers instruct their employees on how to meet, direct and make welcome visiting tourists is now available on a loan basis through the Canyon Chamber of Commerce.

The slide presentation was produced by the Texas Highway Department and is designed for use by employers of businesses which come into contact with tourists.

The 12-minute presentation comes complete with continuity for each slide and includes information on the tourist attractions in the Canyon area.

The show is available from the chamber office here.

It includes information on how to welcome tourists, how to give directions, what tourist attractions are available and how to present a friendly attitude.

Bill For Aged Gets Go-Ahead

A bill to allow elderly welfare recipients to go to work was passed favorably by the House of Representatives Committee on Human Resources recently.

week.

The bill, presented by Rep. Bryan Poff, is known as the "Green Thumb Bill." It now awaits consideration by the full House.

If approved the bill would allow persons over the age of 55 to work up to 24 hours per week on a public project at the federal minimum wage.

A pilot project currently sponsored by the Texas Farmers Union indicates average participants in the program had an average income of $1100 per year prior to employment in the program. Now they average almost $3,000 per year.

"This bill allows the people to make enough money to live on and at the same time give them something to take pride in," Poff said. "This bill will not create a new state agency. It will be administered by the Governor's Committee on the Aging."

Administrative costs will be minimal, Poff said, since more than 90 per cent of the money appropriated for the bill will go to salaries for participants.

Total cost of the program will be less than $400,000.

A date for consideration of the bill in the House has not yet been set.

City Council Meets Monday

The Canyon City Commission, after swearing in J. Pat Stevens and Willis Harrison, are expected Monday night to consider a number of proposals and to conduct a public hearing regarding zoning of the W. R. Crow Subdivision.

Other business expected to come before the council is a petition requesting that a tract of land adjacent to Pioneer Estates be annexed into the city, and consideration of granting a franchise to Pioneer Natural Gas Co.

The issuance of a new franchise to the gas company was brought closer to reality earlier this month when voters approved the drawing up of a new resolution regarding franchises.

The commission will also discuss an interim program report as delivered by Hennington, Durham & Richardson, a firm hired to study the needs and feasibility of building a new city hall complex. City commission meetings are held in the Canyon Community Center, beginning at 7 p.m.

WT Will Be Test Center For Exams

West Texas State University will serve as a test center for the annual Certified Professional Secretary examination May 4-5.

Dr. Roland Johnson, chairman of the WTSU business education and office administration department, said approximately 3,000 secretaries will take the six-part examination at 141 centers in the U.S., Canada and Puerto Rico.

The examination includes sections on environmental relationships in business, business and public policy, economics of management, financial analysis and the mathematics of business, communications and decision making, and office procedures.

Texas, with 526, has the second largest number of Certified sociation, Amarillo, and one in the Tierra Blanca Chapter, Canyon and Hereford.

The examination is open to all Professional Secretaries, Johnson said. The Golden Spread has 21 with 13 of these in the Palo Duro Chapter of the National Secretaries As- secretaries who meet specific educational requirements in combination with specified years of verified secretarial experience.

Johnson said applications for the 1974 examination are being accepted by the Institute for Certifying Secretaries, 616 East 63rd St., Kansas City, Mo., 64110.

Driver Education Course At WTSU

A driver education and traffic safety study program for state approved supervising teachers will be held at West Texas State University beginning June 4.

The program, sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and WTSU, with support from the Texas Traffic Safety Fund, will consist of six-hour classes, Monday through Friday, ending June 29.

The program is being offered in keeping with the intent of the National Highway Safety Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-564).

In an effort to make driver education available to all eligible students and to meet the anticipated increased demands for instructors, the State of Texas has developed a state plan for driver training.

According to information supplied by university officials, the purpose of the study program is to prepare supervising teachers to supervise teaching assistants to teach driver education using advanced techniques.

Teachers presently certified as driver education teachers who are in good standing may be recommended as a candidate.

Recommendations may be made by the executive directors of service centers, superintendents of accredited school districts, or by supervisory driver-training instructors of commercial driver-training schools licensed by the Department of Public Safety.

Fifteen stipends of $75 each will be awarded to candidates qualifying by the above standards, officials said.

Lonnie Nichols, instructor of physical education at WTSU, is director of the upcoming program. G. L. Peavy of the Texas Education Agency, will serve as associate director.

Consultant for the program will be Gene Wilkins, also of the Texas Education Agency.

Information and applications may be obtained by writing Eural Ramsey, Instructor of Physical Education, West Texas State University, Canyon, Tex., 79015.

Deadline for application is April 30.

New Trustee Named To Board

An Amarillo architect was named to a one-year term on the Randall County School Board Friday morning.

Don Dickerson was named to fill the unexpired term of Bob Skinner, who resigned from the board recently due to a move out of his precinct.

Board members Charles Purcell, R. B. Gist, J. D. Barker and Don Marsh picked Dickerson over two others interested in the post by drawing names from a hat.

John Allen, an Amarillo pharmacuetical salesman, and Joe Turpin, a north Randall County farmer, also sought the appointment.

In other action, Purcell was sworn in as board member from precinct two.

He defeated incumbent Mrs. K. Bert Watson during last week's elections by polling 39 votes to her 3.

Dickerson has three children and has been active in Kids, Inc., and the P-TA.

Dowlen To Austin For Bill Hearing

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen will be in Austin Tuesday to testify before a Senate committee concerning a bill which would raise the state's supplement for his salary from a current level of about $2600 annually to about $15,000 per year.

The bill, which was object of a favorable resolution from Randall County commissioners two weeks ago, calls for counties with criminal district attorneys in the state to be given an amount equal to that given counties which have constitutional district attorneys.

Currently, counties with constitutional attorneys are supplemented with six times as much money as are counties with criminal district attornies.

Dowlen is a criminal district attorney.

The Canyon High School Band was one of only three Region 1 groups to take dual number 1 ratings in University Interscholastic League competition held in the Amarillo Civic Center Thursday.

The CHS Band, under direction of J. W. King, took top honors in both Concert and Sight Reading. Other dual winners were Pampa and Hereford.

Eleven Bands from 10 high schools took part in the event. They included entries from Dumas, Perryton, Borger, Caprock, Tascosa, Amarillo High School and Palo Duro.

The junior high school concert band from Canyon also took number I ratings in Concert and Sight Reading, as did the junior high symphonic band.

The junior high bands are directed by Gary Laramore.

In all, the three Canyon bands swept to six division I ratings.

A statement filed by incumbent Willis Harrison, who ran unopposed, indicates he spent no money and accepted no gifts in the city race.

An estimated 125 Jaycees and their wives from throughout the Panhandle attended a regional work forum held at Canyon High School Thursday night.

Rick Clayton of Pasadena, Tex., national vice president of Jaycees and now a candidate for national president, served as guest speaker.

John Duggan, state vice president from Vega, presided over the meeting which was sponsored by Region 101 which includes the Canyon group.

In addition to the eight Region 101 clubs, six out-of-region clubs were also represented, said Bary Sanders of the Canyon Jaycees.

Following the talk by Clayton, the Jaycee-Ettes held a separate program presented by a Planned Parenthood organization.

Accent on the Arts

By JUNE DAYEN

THE NAME AND fame of the "TEXAS" musical production continues to spread. Raymond Raillard reports that among the tours already booked is one for July 14 composed of 102 Australian cattlemen on a world beef tour. A similar tour was here last summer.

The "TEXAS" musical will also be one of the attractions featured in a film to be released by Universal Pictures soon on "The Conquistadores Trail," a kind of travelogue on the area of Arizona, New Mexico, and the Panhandle.

THE BEGINNINGS OF "TEXAS" was the subject Margaret Harper talked on before an audience of Canyon Dames at their luncheon last Tuesday. She recalled that having invited distinguished composer Paul Green to consider Palo Duro Canyon as a site for his outdoor musicals, the early promoters didn't know quite what to do when he accepted. "It was rather like inviting the President to dinner—and having him accept," she said.

ABOUT 60 PIECES of art by students at West Texas State University went on exhibit this week in the Amarillo Art Center. Hours for the Center, where the exhibit will remain through April 24, are: Sunday, 1-5 p.m.; closed Monday; Tues.-Fri., 10 a.m.-6 p.m.; and Saturday, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. On Wednesday nights the Center is also open from 7-9:30 p.m.

Paul Jenkins watercolors on loan from the Corcoran Galleries are also on exhibit.

"ROCK ART OF the Palo Duro" was discussed by Mrs. Emily Upshaw, Canyon artist, and Mrs. Roberta Currie of Lake Tanglewood at a Thursday night meeting of the WTSU Anthropological Society.

Mrs. Upshaw gathered photographs and detailed information on eight sites of Indian rock carving and painting in the Palo Duro Canyon for a thesis submitted at WT last spring. Most are found in caves and overhangs. Since the subject of many of the petroglyphs (carvings) and paintings (pictographs) are horses, Mrs. Upshaw places them as work of the Plains Indians done after Coronado's arrival in 1531.

Facts about the separate sites were already known, but Mrs. Upshaw collected and organized them and says that she and her husband found a few in addition. Sounds like a fascinating hobby. However, with a major in art and minor in anthropology, her interest is deeper.

"OPERETTA TONIGHT" WAS another chance to be reminded that the Community Concert Series really does bring stimulating artists of high caliber to Canyon. The voices and accompaniment seemed just right for those classics from Romberg, Gershwin, Lehar, and Strauss, recreating them with the vitality and color they deserve.

THE BLIZZARD SUDDENLY pouncing on the Panhandle a week ago Saturday night left many stranded after the Saturday performance of "Carnival."

Rowie and Marcia Durden found themselves playing unexpected hosts to Gabor Rejto, the world renown cellist from California who was scheduled for a concert next day. Marcia was intrigued to find the maestro with "feet of clay"—for example, he wasn't above lugging a sack of groceries. But the highlight of the snowbound interlude came when he gave a brief impromptu concert in their living room, actually a sort of practice session, before the scheduled Sunday afternoon program.

Many of the performers of "Carnival" had to improvise sleeping arrangements also. Mike McKenzie's mother put up the girl dancers, and his grandmother put up the boy dancers, they say.

MEMBERS OF THE Amarillo Fine Arts Association have their Spring Citation Show now hanging in Western Mall, and it can be viewed through next Saturday. Mrs. Janet Blasdel, president, says that the winners will be sent on for a fine arts exhibit in Austin next August. Here will be a chance to get in some shopping and art browsing at the same time.

MRS. GLENNA WILSON, with a water color, Mrs. Lillie Hundley, with a pen and ink drawing, and Mrs. Ellen Matney, with original embroidery—all were winners in the art division of the Arts and Crafts Exhibit staged as part of the Top of Texas District Convention last weekend.

Two clubwomen given awards for their handiwork at the Top of Texas District Convention last week are Mrs. Ellen Matney, who won a blue ribbon for the original embroidered wall hanging shown, and Mrs. Peggy Smallwood, who took first place in the "Fashions for Fun" style show with the hand-knitted dress she is modeling.

Women Win Awards For Arts And Crafts

A number of Canyon women received top awards in the Arts and Crafts Exhibit and "Fashions for Fun" event of the Top of Texas District Convention held recently at the WTSU Activities Center.

Mrs. Peggy Smallwood captured first place in "Fashions for Fun" with a hand-knitted dress. The competition was staged as a fashion show with clubwomen modeling their own creations at a luncheon April 7 in the East Cafeteria.

In the Arts and Crafts Exhibit, "judges' choice" designated top winners in the four categories of art, needlework, crafts, and special. Mrs. Mary Ellen Garner won the "judges' choice" award in the special category, which included Christmas decorations, with a Christmas stocking. She also won a blue ribbon in the needlework division with a knitted afghan.

Receiving ribbons in the arts category were Mrs. Glenna Wilson, with a water color, and Mrs. Lillie Hundley, with pen and ink drawing.

In the needlework division, winners included Mrs. Ellen Matney, for original embroidery; Mrs. John Childs, for knitted garment; and Mrs. Joy Davis, for macrame weaving.

Winning in the crafts division were Mrs. Charlotte McClure, with handmade flowers; Mrs. Linda Looney, with metal decoupage; Mrs. Barbara Wirt, with decoupage; Mrs. Joy Davis, with gold leaf; Mrs. Juanita Brotherton, and with jewelry.

Mrs. Beth Fitzner won a ribbon in the special category with Christmas tree ornaments.

Judges for the Arts and Crafts Exhibit were Charlotte Brantley, art instructor at Canyon High School; Sarah Thompson, artist and owner of Thompson's of Canyon; Jim Ward, local artist and sculptor; and Jerry Warren, artist and WTSU art instructor.

WT Chorale On Television

The West Texas State University Chorale under the direction of Dr. Hugh Sanders will be featured in a "teleconcert" to be broadcast at 12:30 p.m. on Easter Sunday, April 22, over KVII-TV, Channel 7.

The 46-member group will perform portions of Bach's Cantata No. 4, "Christ Lay in the Bonds of Death," as well as Heinz Werner Zimmerman's "Choral Settings of the Psalms."

Also featured on the program will be portions of black composer John W. Work's "Isaac Watts Comtemplates the Cross."

Soprano Janice Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Perkins of 1630 N. Marrs, will be soloist in the performance of the Easter favorite, "Were You There?"

The audio portion of the program was recorded at West Amarillo Christian Church, according to Dr. Sanders.

Mrs. Haggard Is Club Hostess

Mrs. W.F. Haggard, 2416 7th Ave., was hostess to the Priscilla Club on Wednesday afternoon, April 4.

Those attending were Mmes. Alfred Bellah, Clay Cooper, A.M. Cunningham, J.M. Daugherty, B.M. Foster, A.K. Goodman, T.H. Knighton, Bailey McCormick, Dudley Moore, Sr., Ed Weeks, Florene Moore, T.S. Stevenson, Sr., M.J. Noel, and Floyd Tomlinson.

The group will meet again on May 2 in the home of Mrs. T.H. Knighton, 409 Thompson Lane.

Prof, Students Write Articles

Two research papers by Dr. Gene Crowder of West Texas State University are scheduled for publication in the April issue of the Journal of Molecular Structure.

Crowder, chairman of the chemistry department, said papers by him and Pote Pruettiangkura, WTSU graduate student from Thailand, were published in the January and February issues of the journal.

Another paper by Crowder appeared in the March edition of the same journal.

Hsiang Mao, WTSU graduate student from Taiwan, co-authored with Crowder one of the articles to appear in the April journal.

The five papers deal with studies of molecular structures by using vibrational spectros-copy and theoretical calculations with a computer, Crowder said.

The research was supported by a $30,000 grant from the Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston.

In addition to these papers, Crowder said he has six more accepted for publication in five scientific journals during 1973.

Going somewhere? Or been? The Canyon News wants to know about it—an so do its readers.

Senior Recital For Student

Stephen A. Haddad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony A. Haddad of El Paso, will be featured in a euphonium recital scheduled at 4 p.m. April 25 in the West Texas State University Fine Arts Theater.

Haddad, a senior euphonium student of Donald Baird of the WTSU music faculty, is a member of Alpha Chi, national honor society, and the University Brass Choir. He serves as president of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, music fraternity, and as vice-president of the University Band.

He is listed in the 1972-73 edition of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities.

Programmed for Haddad's recital are Handel's "Sonata in F Major," Paul Whear's "Sonata for Baritone and Piano," Douglas Townsend's "Chamber Concerto No. 2," and Ulrich's "Sonata for Baritone and Piano."

The recital is being presented in partial fulfillment of graduation requirements for the Bachelor of Music degree in euphonium.

Mona Crawford and Bryan Palmer, members of Mrs. Marilyn Warren's 5th grade class at Rex Reeves, at work getting out "The Warren Times," a newspaper being published by the students.

Students Have Own Class Newspaper

Because of an idea developed after watching a television show, Canyon now has a new newspaper. It's "The Warren Times," published by the fifth grade students of Mrs. Marilyn Warren at Rex Reeves Elementary School.

The students have now issued two editions of the paper, begun about six weeks ago at the request of student Bryan Palmer. The youngster said he got the idea after seeing a class newspaper organized on the television show, Room 222.

"We (students) talked about it at lunch one day and then asked Mrs. Warren if we could do it," said young Palmer, who now serves as one of three editors.

The second edition consists of 14 stories on two pages. The stories are complete with headlines and credit is given the student writers.

Among the stories are various items of class interest, even one announcing the opening of a nearby drive-in restaurant. Sports and future events make up a major portion of the news.

One typical article is:

"Spring Has Sprung" by Rhonda Scott . . . March 20, 1973 was the first day of spring. Now the birds and bees are back. The days are hotter than ever. And they are cool. Now the flowers are blooming and the leaves are now coming back on the trees.

The students write their own material on a typewriter of dubious vintage, make the stencils, edit the copy and tend to all usual chores other than the actual printing on a copy machine. This, and the stapling, is done by a member of the school's staff.

Other editors include Jeff McKay and Bryan McMinn. Proofreaders are Mona Crawford, Teresa Warren and Rebecca Waide. Reporters include Kip Pruett, Craig Pinkerton, Fred Lehman, David Blake and Ross Glenn.

According to young Palmer, the news business has proved interesting to him. "I might like to be an editor when I grow up," he said.

Miss Crawford said, "I like it and think it is a good profession."

Eagles Drop Tilt To Lobos By 7-3

The Canyon High School baseball Eagles dropped their opening District 1-AAA contest 7-3 Friday at Levelland.

Canyon jumped out in front early by scoring a pair of runs in the first inning. Ed Lair pumped out a single and then catcher Gary Gerber belted a homerun that put two runs on the scoreboard.

Levelland came back with runs in the first and second innings to tie it up. The score remained 2-2 until the bottom of the fourth when the Lobos opened up for four big runs.

A single Eagle run in the top of the sixth was matched by another Lobo run in the bottom half of that frame.

The Eagle's sixth inning run came when Bill Moore singled Wayne Pitt home.

Scott Keeling went all the way on the mound for Canyon, allowing only eight hits and no base on balls. He struck out eight. The Eagles made four errors, two in the first allowing the initial Lobo run.

Lobo pitcher Duane Humble held the Eagles to just four hits and racked up 11 strikeouts.

quor store, alcoholic beverages are being sold already.

"As the court knows, sitting next to this property is the Toot 'n Totum," he said. "It has a permit to sell beer and wine. That's on display there and has been since the voters of Randall County voted on the issue."

Noting that the liquor store location would be just over 300 feet from Coronado Elementary School, Collins said school children, who patronize the Toot 'n Totum before, during and after school hours would be more likely exposed to alcoholic beverages at that establishment rather than at a liquor store since children are not allowed in a liquor store.

Webster reiterated his protest concerning the licensing and said he would have protested the licensing of the Toot 'n Totum had he known about it.

The petitions submitted by Webster and apparently signed by more than 100 persons, cite the nearness to the elementary school, the traffic problems on 34th Street, and the proximity to a residential neighborhood as reasons the request should be denied.

Jody McCarthy of the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Commission said he has no protest concerning the licensing.

Pond said he is delaying his decision until 3 p.m. Wednesday in order to confirm the signatures on the petitions presented.

great need for a men's store," he said in the earlier newspaper. "We moved here the following March and opened in April.

In 1924, Warren changed the name of his store to The People's Store.

"I leased a 40 by 90 building and added women's clothing and piece goods," he said.

The store expanded again when Warren bought a 20 by 90 building on the north side of his store and moved his shoe department into the area.

After weathering out the depression, Warren purchased the 40 by 90 building he had been leasing and added another 40 feet to the rear.

Later, he remodeled and changed the name of the store to Warren's.

After the store was damaged by a fire in 1961, Warren remodeled again.

Warren's sons, Bernard and Meredith, have also been highly involved in running the store here.

"You can't walk off and leave something you've spent the better part of your years in without having mixed emotions," Bernard Warren said. "We've had an awful lot of good friends over the years. They've made it possible for us to stay here over these 52 years and we appreciate it."

W. A. Warren said the sale of the store marks his retirement, and although he says he's not a fisherman or hunter, he'll enjoy the out-of-doors on his ranch.

Tourism . . .

an outdoor drama brings about $9 million per year to our area.

She urged the chamber members to become ambassadors for the area, to take brochures with them wherever they travel.

Jerry Hutton of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce expressed the desire of the Amarillo chamber to work with the Canyon group to promote tourism.

"I'm glad Amarillo is so close to you because you've got all the tourist attractions," Hutton said. "There are so many things we have going for us, we want to work with you."

Paul Ferguson, manager of Buffalo Lake, which recently reopened for fishing, said in the two weeks the lake has been open this spring 12,000 visitors have come to the lake. That figure compares, he said, with a total of 55,000 visitors who came to the lake in all of 1972.

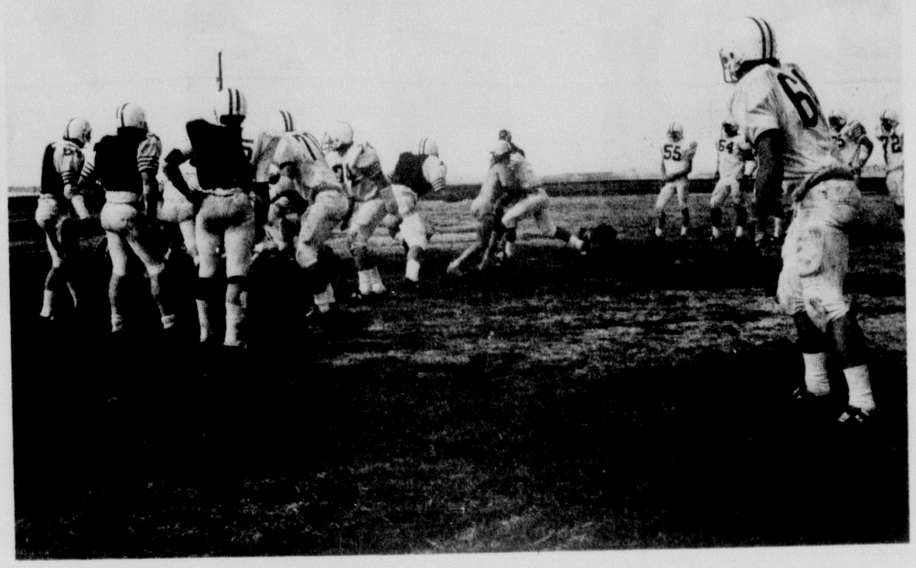
Local businessman Richard Pruett pointed out the importance of tourism to the Canyon business community. Noting that the tourist dollar turns over about seven times in a community, Pruett said each tourist leaves about $13 per day here if he stays.

"I'd like to see all the businessmen get behind the chamber and push for tourism," he said.

Head West Texas State University Football Coach Gene Mayfield told the chamber members he hopes to attract 100,000 fans to Kimbrough Memorial Stadium next fall to watch the Buffaloes in six home games.

"There's no question we'll have a better football team than we've had in the two years I've been here," he said. "But, we have four opponents on there who are better teams than ones we played last year."

Lt. Col. John Childs, chamber director, was host for the breakfast. Entertainment was provided by Andy and Phil Dietz of WTSU.



The West Texas State University Buffaloes practice drills during a final regular workout period before the spring break which begins today for them. They scrimmaged Saturday in Kimbrough Stadium.

Passing Progress Seen For Buffs By Mayfield

West Texas State University's football team takes a week off during the spring semester break before returning to work Tuesday, April 24.

The Buffaloes of coach Gene Mayfield completed their third week of practice with a scrimmage Saturday afternoon in Kimbrough Memorial Stadium.

West Texas suffered its first major loss by injury this past week when starting offensive guard Allen Mullins of Sunray injured his left knee. He underwent surgery Friday afternoon in Amarillo and will miss the remainder of spring drills. It is hoped that he will be able to play next fall.

"Slowly, but surely our passing game is making some progress," said Mayfield. The Buffalo coaching staff set out to work this spring on a passing attack which was last in the Missouri Valley Conference standings last fall, but was slowed early in workouts by high winds and cold weather.

"I'm well pleased with the receivers, but we are not delivering the ball at the proper time consistently," said Mayfield. "Bob Seat is throwing the best right now, with Mike Wartes and Don Nava in that order behind him."

Sweat is a returning letterman from last fall. He entered the Wichita State game late and directed a passing game which resulted in a 21-16 victory in the closing seconds of play. At other times the 6-0,200-pound former Marine was inconsistent with his tossing.

Wartes started most of the games last fall and Nava is a junior college transfer.

"Mike Lozano (5-6, 150-pound freshman from Amarillo Caprock) was injured most of this past week, but he and Kenneth Sellers have been leading the split receivers," said the head coach.

"Freshmen Mickey Matthews and Eddie Richardson have been catching the ball well at wing back. All three tight ends — Merced Solis, Tom Brownfield and Jeff Loyd — are doing well. All three are big, good targets."

Solis, at 6-2 and 215, is the returning regular. Brownfield (6-5 and 220) lettered last fall, while Loyd (6-6 and 220) was the starting tight end for the 1972 Buffalo Freshmen.

Scheid's wife has been quoted as saying her husband had collected jewels and guns for many years. Each piece of jewelry has a price listed on its reverse side. Scheid was not rated to fly an airplane at night.

Students Question Voting Procedures

Vague voting procedures and other alleged irregularities have brought about protests from at least three West Texas State University students regarding university elections held on campus Wednesday and Thursday.

In question are the elections of student association officers, class senators and cheerleaders, plus the Student Bill of Rights and five constitutional amendments.

Those going on record as dissatisfied with the procedures used in the vote and final tabulations are Brent Moore, Amarillo senior; Juan Aguilera, Farwell junior; and Randal Hatfield, Borger senior.

According to Moore, a runoff vote should be held to determine winners of elections in which no candidate received at least 50 per cent of the total vote.

Moore added that the school constitution requires that a runoff be held in such cases but that the rule had not been adhered to in the recent voting. Bettie Jo Davidson was judged the winner of the vice president seat despite receiving only 44 per cent of the total vote.

Two other candidates, Ronald McNeese and Tom Martin polled 28 per cent and 27.4 per cent respectively, for a total of 55.4 per cent.

Aguilera won a seat on the senate via write-in voting.

The students contesting the election said they were not protesting any individual winners, but rather were attacking the manner in which the election was conducted and interpreted.

For the first time in history, a black gained a position on the WTSU senate when Walter Hibbler gained election through write-in votes.

In winning the vice presidency of the student association, Miss Davidson became the first woman in many years to hold that important post.

A ruling regarding the validity of the election is expected soon from Scott Douglas, chief justice.

Easter Bunnies Bring Books

The Randall County Extension Office has some advice about Easter gifts to children this year.

Easter rabbits may give books this holiday.

A child's book—or children's poetry—instead of all sweet treats or colored eggs would make a different Easter nest for children and grandchildren.

If he likes to "do things" give him a scratch-and-sniff book like "Little Bunny Follows His Nose."

If he's interested in imaginary or exciting things, other Easter selections could be "The Little White Rabbit Who Wanted Red Wings" by Dorothy Aldis or "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" by Beatrix Porter.

Three additional possibilities are "The Egg Book" by Margaret Brown, "The Egg Tree" by Katherine Milhous and "An Egg Is For Wishing" by Helen Kay.

Givers of children's literature should be aware of what is new, available and appealing to children. Librarians, teachers and book store owners usually are most willing to offer guidance.

Music Head Named Pres. Of Group

The head of the West Texas State University music department has been elected vice president of the Texas Association of Music Schools.

Dr. George Umberson, who assumed the music department chairmanship at WT in 1970, was elected to the vice-presidency at the annual meeting of the Association held recently in Dallas. Dr. Fisher Tull of Sam Houston State University was re-elected President.

The Texas Association of Music Schools is composed of 74 representatives from institutions of higher learning throughout Texas. The purpose of the organization is to "advance the cause of music in higher education and to improve the quality of the music educational system in Texas through the promotion of cooperation between all colleges and universities."

Dr. Umberson, prior to coming to WTSU, served as chairman of the vocal department at Eastern New Mexico University for ten years. While at Eastern, his choir was selected to perform for the New Mexico Music Educators Convention, the Southwestern Divisional Convention of the Music Educators National Conference, and the National Convention of the American Choral Directors Association in Seattle, Washington.

Since moving to Texas he has been named chairman of a statewide committee to study teacher education training in the state, and has been active as an institutional representative of the National Association of Schools of Music.
